

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The human behavior simulator and method with metacognitive capability enhances the quality of simulation for behavioral simulation and decision making processes by generating, storing and updating information on internal aspects of the resources that are involved in processing cognitive tasks. A cognitive proprioception unit detects any internal change among the resources and updates symbolic knowledge that represent the internal aspects of the resources.